CACTI and SUCCULENTS

These plants have become so popular and the demand so widespread, it does not seem necessary to give them any special introduction. Our "Desert Gardens," in novel and interesting pots, have proven such a strong drawing card, we are going a step further and helping to plan for a desert corner in real gardens.

The success of our own small "desert" has been a source of interest and not a little amusement to us. That corner had always been a thorn in our side, never seemed to be properly watered, resisted our best efforts to keep it in order and stuck out like a sore thumb in the most prominent spot on the place. On the spur of the moment, we dumped a lot of rocks all over it, formed them roughly into a rugged landscape, covered them over with soil and sand, and just told it to go ahead, get as dry and hot as it wanted to and see if we cared! On the mountains we planted the cacti where we were sure of good drainage, and in the valleys below the succulents that demanded moisture. Nothing remarkable about it, but it seems to have a fascination for visitors.

Our collection of succulents is unusually good. Unfortunately we do not have them catalogued yet. That will come later. The bulk of these we sell at 25c apiece.
